Welcome to the 2018 Philly Home + Garden Show!

With Spring just around the corner, now is the time to start planning your next home improvement project. And you've certainly picked the right place to get started! Whether you're looking to hire a professional or simply looking for inspiration to do it yourself, I'm sure you'll be able to find exactly what you're looking for this weekend.

This year, at your request, we have stepped up our focus on outdoor spaces. We have expanded and diversified our garden area and added a "yard" to our model home.

We'll even have a florist onsite for those of you who may not have a green thumb, but still appreciate the natural beauty flowers bring to your home!

There's a lot to see and do, so I have listed a few highlights that I think will make your Philly Home + Garden Show experience complete.

Sincerely,
Jenna Naffin
Assistant Show Manager

You've Gotta See This:

Backyard Oasis

The experts at Belgard by Hetrick Hardscaping and Pine Creek Structures have joined forces to create a backyard patio where you can take a break from walking the show floor and immerse yourself in luxury.

Smart Home, Smarter Design

Experience the next generation of at-home comfort in the all-new, high tech Smart Home powered by Xfinity and built by Rudloff Custom Builders. This home will feature everything from innovative design concepts to the latest technology.

The Art of Home Décor

Stroll through Crafted, an open-air market style area that features vendors with hand-crafted home décor, original art and more.

Garden Inspirations

Some of the region's top landscaping companies are coming together to create feature gardens that will make it easy to escape the winter and think spring. This year's expanded feature includes the Conshohocken Brewing Company beer garden, an "Edible Landscaping" feature from Scott Baldelli Gardening & Design in Hall A and a pop-up flower shop from Cameron Peters Floral Design.

Make-It, Take-It

Local craft and DIY bloggers will guide you through a fun DIY project during one-hour sessions throughout the entire weekend. Take a peek at the workshop schedule to sign up and learn some new craft tricks, or to just let your creativity flow.

Thank You to Our Show Partners!

2018 Philly Home + Garden Show Guide

Mmmmm ... Landscaping

If you tell Scott Baldelli, that his garden looks delicious, he'll take it as a compliment.

A past garden design student at Harvard University's Arnold Arboretum and a 14-year veteran of the horticulture industry, the owner of Scott Baldelli Gardening & Design says that you don't have to separate your perennial garden from your vegetable or herb garden. Combining them can create a beautiful landscape that can be beneficial to all of your plants.

Here are his main tips:

Pick plants you already eat. "If you're looking to add edible plants to your landscape, choose fruits and vegetables that you like and know how to cook," Baldelli says.

Purposeful planting can protect your garden. Marigolds will help with just about any garden pest (including deer) while carrots, parsley, borage and parsnip attract friends of a garden like the praying mantis, the ladybug or the spider – all insects that eat other bugs.

If you're short on space, use containers. Many edible plants do well in containers and can add a pop of green to a windowsill, balcony or patio.

Position your plants strategically. Some herbs like Creeping Thyme have a tendency to drape, which is a good choice for the edge of the garden. You can pair tall plants with shade lovers—spinach and Swiss chard would love to grow in the shade of tall flowers.

Visit Baldelli's "Edible Landscaping" display in Hall A to learn how you can make your garden as tasty as it is beautiful!

TRADING SPACES...

AGAIN!

The show that forged the way for the phenomenon that is design television, Trading Spaces, is coming back to TLC with many familiar faces. Paige Davis, who is returning as its host, is in town at the Philly Home + Garden Show to talk about what it was like to help launch the home improvement movement as well as what the next season of the show has in store.

In case you've forgotten, Trading Spaces is a show where two neighbors trade keys to their houses and are assigned a designer, a carpenter, a budget of $1,000 and a schedule of 2-3 days to complete a room renovation. Paige always delivered on excitement when she wove her personality through the projects and introduced the homeowners to their newly designed rooms—sometimes much to their excitement and sometimes to sheer disgust.

Paige says the camaraderie with the homeowners and the crew, as well as the thrill of witnessing these transformations firsthand lured her back to her hosting duties. She revels in her role of being the homeowners' confidant and holding their hands through the process.

"You definitely see the dark and light within couples when they're forced into a crazy, time crunch situation," Paige says. "Jeopardy brings out the best, and sometimes worst in people. But truly, it's almost always positive. People who apply to be on Trading Spaces tend to be fun people who are up for a wild experience. They usually go with the flow, and that makes for a good marriage too."

Catch Paige on the Main Stage on Feb. 16 at 6 p.m. and Feb. 17 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

As host of the original design TV show, Paige was one of the first to inspire homeowners to take a new hands-on approach to renovating or decorating their homes.

So what's her advice for anyone ready to tackle a home renovation? Take your time!

"Finish your home slowly, especially when it comes to the décor," she says. "Buy the essential pieces that you can't live without, like a mattress, a dinner table and chairs, maybe a sofa—then take your time finding the other pieces and accents. Or even better yet, let them find you! There's not a whole lot that is more sterile than matchy-match pieces and mass-manufactured art. Let your home be filled with the magical items that tell the story of your life, your relationship, your family and your journey. That takes time."

2018 Philly Home + Garden Show Guide

The Smart Home is equipped with the latest technology from Xfinity that enables you to control everything from lights to your thermostat.

Using tile to create stripes on a shower wall adds some visual interest to a bathroom.

You can change up the feel of neutral cabinets by making a bold hardware choice.

The 2018 edition of the Smart Home, powered by Xfinity and built and designed by Rudloff Custom Builders, is an homage to both the spirit of transitional design and the latest home technology.

Model Home

It's no competition.
Only Xfinity delivers all of this and more.

- Access to Netflix and YouTube on X1
- Most FREE movies & TV shows on the go
- Best in-home WiFi experience
- Up to 5 lines of unlimited nationwide talk & text included when you sign up for Xfinity Mobile

Check out the Smart Home powered by Xfinity at the show today to learn more.

Restrictions apply. Not available in all areas. TV: Access to Netflix on X1 requires an eligible X1 set-top box with TV and Internet service. Netflix requires streaming membership. Mobile: Requires post-pay subscription to a residential Xfinity Internet service. New Xfinity Internet customers limited to up to two lines pending activation of Internet service. Call for restrictions and complete details. © 2018 Comcast. All rights reserved. NPA208183

Using neutral colors like whites, grays and blues, and design elements, like kitchen cabinets that don't marry themselves to a specific style, the Smart Home shows how a homeowner can easily shift the bones of a room toward colonial, modern or farmhouse.

As an example, the kitchen in the 3,200-square-foot home is equipped with white shaker-style cabinets, says President Ed Rudloff, who's leading the design this year. The addition of satin brass hardware skews the room toward a more contemporary feel, especially with the stainless steel appliances from Kieffer's Appliances in Lansdale.

The home's color palate exemplifies the trend of homeowners looking for fresh and clean finishes.

"People are moving away from heavy stain and paint colors," Rudloff said. "A brighter finish makes the room feel more open and allows for more options when it comes to choosing hardware."

The bathroom features a bold design choice Rudloff says more and more of his clients are adding to their home. Going beyond the traditional placement of shower wall tiles, this room will feature vertical stripes.

"Doing things a little differently will really break up an otherwise boring room," Rudloff said. "We tell our clients that it's okay to make bold choices in your design, just as you would your wardrobe. Pairing a pair of brown shoes with navy khakis will never turn heads. You need a pop to it."

The home also features Xfinity Home, Comcast's total home security and automation solution that provides families with peace of mind and complete control of your home's wireless devices. For example, by simply saying "Good Night" into your X1 voice remote, you can lock doors, turn off lights, adjust the thermostat and arm your home security system.

With Xfinity Home you can personalize your home system by setting rules to get real-time alerts when activity is detected so you can keep an eye on what matters most, whether at home or on the go. Through the integrated technology, you can view live video on your television from the comfort of your couch by saying "Xfinity Home cameras" into the X1 voice remote. Plus, access your system on the go via the Xfinity Home app on your mobile devices.

The Smart Home is also equipped with Xfinity xFi, which allows customers to set up their home WiFi network, find their password, see what devices are connected to their network, troubleshoot issues, set parental controls and even pause WiFi access during dinner or at bedtime.

Spend some time with Rudloff and Xfinity in the Smart Home as you enter the Philly Home + Garden Show to imagine how the latest in technology and design can improve your own home life.

Philly's Rachel Street will showcase property revival projects in her hometown on a new DIY Network series.

What's Old is New Again

Catch Rachel on the Main Stage on Feb. 17 at 3 p.m. and Feb. 18 at 1 p.m.

If you'd ask Rachel Street to show you the quintessential neighborhood in her native Philadelphia, you'd better plan to make a day of it.

The host of an upcoming DIY Network show that documents her team's renovation projects throughout her hometown of Philly, Rachel says it's the architectural diversity that can be seen throughout the city's neighborhoods that sets it apart from other urban areas.

"There isn't just one style," she says. "But each of them have original features that showcase Philly's history so well."

As Philadelphia's population decline has turned around in the past few years, more people are investing in these classic homes. The challenge is to make the spaces designed for a life-style long since passed to be livable in the modern world.

"A lot of developers are tearing out the things that make these homes special. My business is about incorporating the old with the new," she says.

The trick, she says, is to pair classic features like ornate crown molding with modern design features with clean lines and subdued colors. That way, you're highlighting the original features and honoring the original character of the space, versus distracting attention away from them.

She finds herself tearing down a lot of walls, too, as the tiny rooms that worked well decades ago do not fit in a modern home.

Rachel is excited that her TV series will enable her to show her hometown off to her viewers.

"We're a world-class city that is currently experiencing a lot of growth, partially because it's one of the least expensive urban real estate markets on the East Coast," she says. "I'm thrilled to be a part of its renaissance."

Outside of her TV hosting duties, Rachel is the owner of Hestia Construction and Team Leader of The Street Group at Space & Company. Whether they are a first-time homebuyer or a seasoned investor, Rachel's clients benefit from both her in-depth understanding of property valuation, finance, design and construction, as well as her genuine excitement for the city she loves.
