Welcome

to the 2018 Indianapolis Home Show

INDIANAPOLIS HOME SHOW

The 10-day Indianapolis Home Show is the nation's oldest and the Midwest's largest home-focused extravaganza, offering the best in home products as well as decorating, construction and remodeling ideas. The show is the largest consumer home event in Indiana. Now in its 96th year, the Indianapolis Home Show has more than 900 experts in everything for your home!

This year's Centerpiece Home brings a dazzling mix of luxury and hominess, as Fischer Homes showcases its Crestview American Heritage design, part of its Grand Estates Custom Collection. The impressive structure is built entirely inside Exposition Hall at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

A two-story layout with a basement, the Crestview boasts nearly 3,000 square feet on the main floor and more than 1,400 on the second floor, for a total of 4,370 square feet. This includes four bedrooms and 3½ baths.

The main floor features lavish entertaining spaces including a gourmet kitchen with a spacious island, a cozy hearth room and a soaring two-story family room with a massive fireplace and ceiling beams.

The master suite is also on the first floor this year, and it includes its own floor-to-ceiling stone fireplace, light-filled sitting area and a spa-like bath with an oversized shower, freestanding bathtub and vaulted ceiling.

"The Crestview is bound to impress, but what we really wanted to project this year was a sense of coziness within grand spaces," said Stephen Whaley, corporate marketing manager for Fischer Homes. "This is one Centerpiece Home that visitors will feel like they are right at home the minute they walk in the door."

Joy Perkins of TOB Design Firm has come up with a show-stopping design for the interior of the home, drawing elements from the iconic Hoosier farmlands as well as sophisticated urban touches.

The house is filled with rustic touches and nods to Indiana's agrarian heritage, from the vintage farm table desk in the study to louvered floor-to-ceiling shutters that can close to separate the dining room.

The great room features a two-story fireplace with a beamed ceiling and oversized sectional. The master bedroom has its own natural stone fireplace, a dark leather bed with faux fur and a coffered ceiling.

"It's about reimagining rurally-based elements — rustic woods, metals and barnyard whimsy," Perkins said. "These natural materials give a sense of casual elegance and unhurried cool. It's very on-point with how people want to live in 2018."

For the Centerpiece Home exterior, Jim Calvin and his team from Calvin Landscape wanted to create "wow" moments as visitors emerge from inside of the home to experience the eye-popping landscape in stages.

Visitors walk out of the rear of the house around a corner to a dramatic reveal of the outdoor space's pool, cabana and other features of the main garden area. It promises to be a kaleidoscope of sights and sounds, as lighted water features bubble and top-end finishings invite people to explore the potential of outdoor living spaces.

"This year's design is a delightful combination of form and function, an eye-catching backyard that can be used from early spring through late autumn," Calvin said. "After touring the main floor of the Centerpiece Home, visitors step into our garden, which is designed as a multi-use entertaining backyard with a lush mixture of deciduous and evergreen landscaping."

The Home Show is going even bigger with small living concepts by featuring an entire Tiny Home Village in the West Pavilion. The display features five separate tiny homes created by different vendors, allowing visitors to explore the range of styles and accommodations available with tiny homes.

Each home in the Tiny Home Village has its own landscaping, highlighting the finest flora there is. There are feature gardens in the back of West Pavilion, and the area's top landscape professionals are also adding their green touch to the Unilock Corner Beer Garden and Outdoor Living Stage areas in the South Pavilion.

Get a glimpse of table decorations fit for all your holiday festivities with our "Settings for the Seasons" feature, then shop a selection of unique furniture pieces from artisans across the country in our Artisan Markets.

This year's celebrity guests include appearances by hometown favorites "Two Chicks and a Hammer" mother and daughter Karen E. Laine and Mina Starsiak, plus HGTV's "Fixer Upper" carpenter Clint Harp and DIY Network's Jason Cameron, host of "Desperate Landscapes," among other local celebrities and features.

Centerpiece Home Dazzles Home Show Visitors

Fischer Homes' Crestview mixes homey feel with affordable luxury

FISCHER HOMES

This year's Centerpiece Home will bring a dazzling mix of luxury and hominess, as Fischer Homes showcases its Crestview American Heritage design, part of its Grand Estates Custom Collection. The impressive structure will be built entirely inside Exposition Hall at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

A two-story layout with a basement, the Crestview boasts nearly 3,000 square feet on the main floor and more than 1,400 on the second floor, for a total of 4,370 square feet. This includes four bedrooms and 3½ baths.

The main floor features lavish entertaining spaces including a gourmet kitchen with a spacious island, a cozy hearth room and a soaring two-story family room with a massive fireplace and ceiling beams.

The master suite is also on the first floor this year, and it includes its own floor-to-ceiling stone fireplace, light-filled sitting area and a spa-like bath with an oversized shower, freestanding bathtub and dramatic vaulted ceiling.

Upstairs includes spacious secondary bedrooms with large walk-in closets, a Jack-and-Jill bathroom and a loft providing additional flexible space for living and play.

Also, in a break from years past, the Crestview will include a heartwarming nursery with precious designs to melt every heart.

"The Crestview is bound to impress, but what we really wanted to project this year was a sense of coziness within grand spaces," said Stephen Whaley, corporate marketing manager at Fischer Homes. "This is one Centerpiece Home that visitors will feel like they are right at home the minute they walk in the door."

Gorgeous interior designs for the Centerpiece Home will be supplied by Joy Perkins of TOB Design Firm, and Calvin Landscape of Indianapolis will create the eye-popping exterior landscape.

"Fischer Homes has outclassed themselves once again. The Crestview is really going to grab a lot of attention as this year's Centerpiece Home," Indianapolis Home Show Manager Laura Groninger said. "This year, Fischer Homes is building a unique concept incorporating the master bedroom on the first floor in an exciting modern farmhouse look and feel. It's a first for the Home Show, and I know all our show visitors will be excited to see and experience this outstanding Centerpiece Home."

Fischer Homes is now building in more than 30 locations across Indiana — Carmel, Geist, Fishers, McCordsville, Greenfield, Zionsville, Westfield, Noblesville, Brownsburg, Avon, Center Grove, Greenwood, and Franklin Township.

"The Centerpiece Home is not just about aspiration, but inspiration," said Fischer Homes Indianapolis Market President Brad Kriner. "We want people to see what sort of dynamic living spaces are possible within this marketplace. Fischer Homes is bringing affordable luxury to Central Indiana."

Joy Perkins Joins Farm and City Inside Centerpiece Home

Designer aims for cozy feel within modern farmhouse concept

Joy Perkins of TOB Design Firm has come up with another show-stopping design for the interior of the Centerpiece Home at the 2018 Indianapolis Home Show, drawing elements from the iconic Hoosier farmlands as well as sophisticated urban touches.

Fischer Homes is building its Crestview American Heritage elevation, part of its Grand Estates Custom Collection, directly inside Exposition Hall at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

With two stories, four bedrooms, 3½ baths and 4,370 square feet of living space, Perkins had a huge canvas upon which to sketch her unique sensibility, which she describes as inspired by both Indiana's agricultural expanses and its city centers.

“This year’s modern farmhouse exudes cozy, livable luxury,” Perkins said. “The farmhouse showcases naturally bold materials like brass, aged woods and rich leathers.”

Between the impressive façade, Perkins’ inviting interior and the outdoor living concept courtesy of Calvin Landscape of Indianapolis, the Crestview Centerpiece Home gives Home Show visitors the impression of a livable homestead where having a luxury sedan parked out front and a tractor in the back would not seem out of place.

The main floor includes both expansive entertaining spaces as well as the master’s suite. The basic colors connecting the entire house are white with creams and grays, with layers of eye-catching elements within this scheme.

The great room features a two-story fireplace with a beamed ceiling and oversized U-shaped sectional. The master bedroom has its own natural stone fireplace, an unexpected dark leather bed with faux fur and a coffered ceiling.

Upstairs, the boy’s bedroom features an Americana theme in red, white and blue, including an American flag painted across two walls, a leather chair and a table made of a musical drum.

The loft features a vintage leather sofa, transparent acrylic chairs, a bamboo table, media unit and snack table.

The girl’s bedroom is designed for the young ballerina, complete with a ballet barre and mirrors against a soft palette of background colors.

This year’s design also features something new and different: a nursery done in a princess theme. A round crib made of white iron has its own canopy, there is a white linen rocking chair for cuddle time, and sparkles are all over the room — even woven into the wall treatment.

The house is filled with rustic touches and nods to Indiana’s agrarian heritage, from the vintage farm table desk in the study to louvered floor-to-ceiling shutters that can close to separate the dining room.

“It is about reimagining rurally-based elements — rustic woods, metals and barnyard whimsy,” Perkins said. “These natural materials give a sense of casual elegance and unhurried cool. It’s very on-point with how people want to live in 2018.”

“Joy Perkins and her team come up with something distinctive and compelling every year for the Centerpiece Home, and her design for the Crestview is really going to make people gasp,” Indianapolis Home Show Manager Laura Groninger said. “The combination of luxury and everyday living makes for a design that invites people to come in and feel at home in their surroundings.”

Calvin Landscape Creates Unexpected Garden Retreat

Centerpiece Home backyard includes cabana, grill island and gunite pool

In approaching the exterior design for the Centerpiece Home of the Indianapolis Home Show, Jim Calvin and his team from Calvin Landscape wanted to create a series of “wow” moments as visitors emerge from the inside of the home to experience the eye-popping landscape in stages.

Home Show visitors will walk out of the rear of the house around a corner to a dramatic reveal of the outdoor space’s pool, cabana and other features of the main garden area. It promises to be a kaleidoscope of sights and sounds, as lighted water features bubble and top-end finishings invite people to explore the potential of outdoor living spaces.

“This year’s design is a delightful combination of form and function, an eye-catching backyard that can be used from early spring through late autumn,” said owner Jim Calvin. “After touring the main floor of the Centerpiece Home, visitors step into our garden, which is designed as a multi-use entertaining backyard with a lush mixture of deciduous and evergreen landscaping.”

Instead of a pergola, this year’s landscaping design incorporates a fully-roofed cabana with a custom grilling center and fireplace area. The gunite pool creates a central entertaining point for the backyard, sporting numerous fountains and bubblers.

“The grill island has all of the features that any outdoor grilling chef would need. Along with the grill island, the gas fireplace brings warmth underneath the covered structure, and it will extend the use and entertaining of the patio well into the fall months,” Calvin said.

In the front of the house are columns of stone in the colors of a river and a walkway of pavers in creams and grays with a chiseled edge along with a unique landscape of vibrant colors and textures.

Fischer Homes is building its Crestview American Heritage elevation directly inside Exposition Hall at the Indiana State Fairgrounds. The Centerpiece Home features two stories, four bedrooms, 3½ baths and 4,370 square feet of living space.

“Jim Calvin and his team always have the freshest ideas for outdoor living spaces, and this year’s landscape design is no exception,” Indianapolis Home Show Manager Laura Groninger said. “Walking out of the Centerpiece Home will feel like stepping into a hidden oasis that families won’t want to leave.”

It Takes a Village ... of Tiny Homes!

Five different tiny homes, each with its own landscaper, nested in West Pavilion

Last year the Indianapolis Home Show featured a single tiny home to reflect a growing trend in the housing market as more people explore living with a minimum of square footage and environmental footprint.

Now the Home Show is going even bigger with small living concepts by featuring an entire Tiny Home Village in the West Pavilion of the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

The display features five separate tiny homes created by different vendors, each with their own custom landscaping design. Home Show visitors will get to explore the range of styles and accommodations available with tiny homes, along with ideas on how to use the space outside.

“Tiny living is not just somewhere to sleep and eat. It’s a minimalist mindset that allows for freedom to live and not be controlled or tied down by possessions, huge mortgages and the pricey upkeep of owning a large home,” said Byron Denhart of Switchgrass Tiny Homes. “By going tiny, you free yourself of a great deal of financial concerns and the burden of too many possessions.”

Like many tiny home builders, Switchgrass often incorporates reclaimed materials such as a barn wood accent wall, salvaged sliding door or vintage bathroom vanity.

Tiny homes are equipped to be year-round, full-time residences and can either be on wheels or with permanent foundations, according to Daniel Joseph Weddle of Carpenter Owl of Bloomington, Ind. They specialize in creating unique structures from natural materials.

The tiny home from BoAD Micro Villas is aimed specifically with the outdoorsman and outdoorswoman in mind. Their Huntsman Cabin sits on a 20-foot hauling trailer that can be pulled by an ATV to remote locations.

Inside are granite countertops and a peg ladder made of a tree trunk.

“Above the fold-down deck is a platform that folds up to become an elevated hunting blind, allowing someone to hunt from the cabin without leaving a scent trail going to another location,” said Brandon Adomatis of BoAD.

Visitors can expect to see a wide variety of colors, outdoor living amenities and foliage for the Tiny Home Village exteriors.

Ryan Coyle of Vive Exterior Design says their company emphasized the natural look in their tiny home landscaping.

“With the rustic charm of the South, this reclaimed metal and wood tiny home fits right in to the rustic landscape with sandstone boulders, natural snapped stone retaining walls, and barn wood bar and grill,” Coyle said. “Relax on an elevated deck next to the fire pit while watching your favorite game on the big screen TV.”

The Tiny Home Village is created by the following builders and landscapers:

- Modern Tiny Living – New Leaf Landscape Design
- Titan Tiny Homes – Grok Landscapes by Design
- Switchgrass Tiny Homes – Country Gardens
- Carpenter Owl – Vive Exterior Design
- BoAD Micro Villas – The Turf Boss

“The tiny home trend shows no sign of abating. After the terrific response to last year’s single tiny home, we decided to do a whole village this year,” Home Show Manager Laura Groninger said. “This display shows the amazing possibilities people have for houses of every size, indoors and out.”

Take Your Home to a Whole New Level

Find creative ways to furnish your home from the Artisan Markets

Have a vision for your furniture but no time or experience to make that vision a reality? Come visit the Artisan Markets at the Home Show, and talk with a variety of vendors offering advice on how to take your home and furniture to a whole new level!

“I am drawn to timeworn, vintage finishes. I love a layered paint look which hints at a piece of furniture having lived an authentic life. I love rusty, chippy, imperfect surfaces with lots of patina and personality,” said BJ Massa, the founder of the furniture business Junk’d Up.

Led by Massa, the Artisan Markets is a juried collective of more than 80 furniture artisans from across the country. Each individual artisan is a small business owner and entrepreneur. In the Artisan Markets online catalog, buyers can find restored antique furniture and painted furniture, as well as refinished and hand-crafted pieces.

All local sellers offer delivery, and any artisan located more than 200 miles outside of Indianapolis and surrounding areas has shipping capabilities.

“Our goal is to offer people a seamless buying experience from the comfort of their own homes that makes them feel good about supporting small businesses,” Massa said.

At the Home Show, attendees can shop from a selection of furniture carefully curated by the artisans themselves. They are also offering a wide range of home decor and accessories. Better yet, attendees can pick the artisans’ brains and get a behind-the-scenes look at the creative process behind their craft.

Two of the artisans — Massa and Heather Barnes, the founder of Delilah Tree — are instructors from Furniture Painting University, a website devoted to teaching furniture painting techniques to subscribers all over the world. They will lead attendees through furniture painting demonstrations at the Unilock Outdoor Living Stage in the South Pavilion on Wednesday, Jan. 24 and Thursday, Jan. 25 at 4 p.m. on both days.

Stop by the Artisan Markets in the West Pavilion and discover new ways to furnish a home as unique as you are. And see them on stage on Wednesday, Jan. 24 and Thursday, Jan. 25!

Define Your Design with Chatham Home

Local furniture seller shows how to best use your space

Buying the right furniture for your home is just the first step to a terrific, eye-pleasing design. You should also think about how that furniture is arranged to make the best use of your space, according to Hope Harsin of Chatham Home, a family-run shop that specializes in solid wood furniture.

Harsin and her mother, Faith Felder, will have one of the more interesting vendor spaces at the 2018 Indianapolis Home Show.

Visitors won't just see a bunch of furniture to admire and purchase. Chatham Home's booth will have three distinct spaces, the exact same size, consisting of a dining room and living room, but each decorated in a completely different way. It will demonstrate to Home Show visitors just how creative they can be in defining their own unique design.

"One will be a masculine space with a mix of materials and textures such as metal, wood and concrete to create an aura of sophistication – not just the usual black leather sofa. Another space will have a very neutral color palette, lots of grays and whites and some navy for contrast," Harsin said. "The third space is going to be all about color, and will have a touch of bohemian style. We show people you don't have to be afraid of color."

The fourth section of their display area in the West Pavilion of the Indiana State Fairgrounds is where people can pick and choose similar items they saw in the three staging areas, plus a whole lot more.

Chatham Home started out six years ago with a vision of selling quality items at affordable prices. In addition to solid wood, they offer a full line of upholstered sofas and chairs in fabric or leather, home accents such as lamps and rugs, and an abundance of gift items. Sourcing from all over the world and right here in Indiana, they offer pieces you won't find at your typical furniture store.

Faith, the owner, brought the business management know-how along with an eye for design, and Hope followed in the family business with formal training in interior design. But the family's specialty is showing clients how to buy furniture with an eye to fill their home with a cohesive design.

"Most people know what they like, but they don't know how to pull it all together," she said. "Ultimately, if we're doing our job right, the space should reflect them. We just help them get there."

They completely changed the look of my house. It looks like a brick house now, but its siding. The garage had some rot in it that I didn't know about. They fixed it and built a new arch for the doorway. They took care of everything! I thought their price was comparable. I would hire them again.

Hoosier Mother and Daughter Hammering Away at Success Duo returns to Home Show as HGTV's "Good Bones" starts third season

Former lawyer Karen E. Laine and her daughter, real estate agent Mina Starsiak, are Two Chicks and a Hammer, Inc.

They began rehabbing houses in the Fountain Square and Bates-Hendricks neighborhoods in their hometown of Indianapolis in 2007.

In the process, they discovered a skill set and passion for neighborhood rehabilitation, one house at a time. They found that they could do well by doing good!

With a mutual passion for rehabilitating homes, the duo maintains focus in one geographical area so they can make a real impact on the community — not bounce around for the cheapest, easiest flip.

In 2014, High Noon Entertainment, who filmed a pilot for HGTV, founded their company. The pilot aired in May 2015 under the name "Two Chicks and a Hammer." In July 2015, they began filming the first season of the show now known as "Good Bones."

Karen and Mina buy many of their homes through the Renew Indianapolis program, which helps homebuyers purchase abandoned properties. They have purchased several homes from the city, a few of them off the demolition list. They bring the properties back to life instead of letting them be torn down, which would leave empty lots that are typically not well maintained.

With Mina's real estate know-how and Karen's no-nonsense legal background, these ladies are unstoppable in getting a property they want and enlisting their family's help with demo and construction.

The "Good Bones" series follows the expert team as they buy homes in serious disrepair, sometimes gut them to the studs, and transform them into stunning remodels. They are now currently filming their third season!

"Two Chicks and a Hammer" stars Karen and Mina appear at the Home Show on Saturday, January 20 ONLY — sharing new tips, tricks and home remodeling advice. Don't miss them!

Custom Craftsman Clint Harp Talks "Wood Work" HGTV's carpenter brings custom wood creations to DIY Network show

Clint Harp can be found regularly on HGTV's hit show "Fixer Upper" as the dumpster-diving, reclaimed wood-loving carpenter.

After quitting his sales job in 2011 to pursue his dream of building furniture and owning his own company, the last thing he expected was to be a nationally-known carpenter featured on HGTV.

Now, together with his wife Kelly and their three kids, the Harps spend each day pursuing their dream and blazing the new trail of owning their own company.

Harp Design Co. provides quality furniture and home goods to customers across the U.S. and abroad. Constantly adjusting to unexpected national exposure, the Harps work hard each day to grow as a family and a business whose core values are love, beauty and creativity.

Clint appears as a supporting role in "Fixer Upper," helping his close friends and stars Chip and Joanna Gaines as they remodel homes in Waco, Texas.

The show attracted more than 19 million viewers its first season, and is currently airing season five, its last season. Clint takes recycled and reclaimed wood, usually found objects, and creates beautiful, one-of-a-kind pieces meant to bring families together, which the Gaines incorporate into their final remodel and home designs.

Up next, Clint stars on the DIY Network series "Wood Work." Along with his wife, Kelly, and the team at Harp Design Co., Clint uses reclaimed lumber to build new furniture out of old wood for clients.

Crazy requests with tight deadlines are the norm, but Clint and his team are ready to tackle any "Wood Work" challenge.

Devoted dad and avid runner, Clint says he is passionate about woodworking and the craftsmanship required to make beautiful furniture.

Come see Clint and more of his rare carpentry creations when he appears at the Home Show on Friday, Jan. 26 and Saturday, Jan. 27!

Contractor Extraordinaire Has a Passion for Home Improvement

DIY Network's Jason Cameron puts all his tools to work

On the outside, Jason Cameron looks like a TV star. But on the inside, he's all handyman and all business. Watch him work and it quickly becomes apparent this licensed contractor really knows his stuff, especially when it comes to his own personal passions: home improvement and landscaping.

Jason says he recently even gutted his own home and completely revamped the backyard. Now he's putting his extensive hands-on expertise to work for DIY Network building, landscaping, hardscaping and more.

A native of Toledo, Ohio, Jason worked his way through Northern Michigan University as a carpenter, and then moved to the Northern Jersey/New York City area where he continued his carpentry and general contracting business.

Jason can be found on the set of DIY Network's "Desperate Landscapes," making a lucky family's landscaping dreams come true with everything from new planting beds and big, new trees to fresh paint and fencing.

A jack of all trades, Jason has to be ready for anything — from building a brand-new porch to removing uneven concrete stairs with a jackhammer.

He is also a host on DIY Network's "Man Caves," creating rooms that are just as fun to work on as they are to hang out in. With NFL great Tony Siragusa, Jason helps create a custom man cave, plus offer ideas and expert do-it-yourself instruction to help homeowners everywhere construct their own personal hangouts.

And then there's "Sledgehammer," a show featuring Jason as he surprises homeowners with a sledgehammer and permission to trash their most-hated rooms in the house. Then, he and his crew clean up the rubble and transform them into the spaces the owners always dreamed of.

Join Jason at the Home Show on Wednesday, Jan. 24 and Thursday, Jan. 25 as he puts his extensive hands-on expertise to work and helps empower others in their own home improvements!

Grow a Beautiful Life with Carrie Petty

Hoosier shows Home Show visitors how to bring the outdoors inside

Carrie Petty doesn't have huge ambitions — she just wants to help everyone “Grow a More Beautiful Life!” The fourth-generation Hoosier, Master Gardener, interior designer, blogger and television personality will help people do just that at the 2018 Indianapolis Home Show, where she will be appearing for four days to share her expertise and inspiration.

Petty wants people to see their home's outdoor spaces as an extension of the interior, and vice-versa. She helps people decorate their homes with a mind to combining the natural elements surrounding it.

“There's a great opportunity for bringing the outdoors inside, and really just making the great room extend to the outdoors and making the outdoors extend indoors, especially to the kitchen,” she said. “Even if it's just a few feet out onto your patio, you can have an herb garden and a real outdoor living space. We have more room than just the rooms inside our house.”

Petty also spent 20 years as a homebuilder along with her husband, winning awards for their work. After the housing crisis, she began to think more holistically about the way we live, transitioning into her current role as an indoor/outdoor designer.

For something as simple as reupholstering a couch, Petty urges her clients to look not at just the piece of furniture, but what lies beyond it. She emphasizes colors, tones and textures that fit together, from window treatments to flower pots.

“I tell them to consider the whole room and even the outside. The windows are some of the most important elements in a room, because they frame the outdoor ‘shot,’” she said. “Whatever fabric they pick should coordinate to make the eye move through the room and extend outside.” One of Petty's favorite things is to show people how a few simple changes, such as throw pillows or rugs, can reflect the shifting of the seasons.

“Your home feels a lot different at Christmas than it does during a summer barbecue. You can create a light winter scape with some whites and light grays. Just changing a few things can change the room.”

Carrie Petty appears at Home Show on Sunday, Jan. 21; Thursday, Jan. 25; Saturday, Jan. 27; and Sunday, Jan. 28.

Stage It Before You Sell It

Krista Bocko of Cachet 317 shows sellers how to make their homes sing

Looking to sell your home? Get tips on how to present your house in its best light from Krista Bocko of Cachet 317, a professional home staging company, at the 2018 Indianapolis Home Show.

Bocko works with homeowners and realtors to get their properties ready to sell. It can be as simple as helping them “edit” their furniture to a bare minimum, rearranging the design completely or bringing in temporary furnishings to maximize the flow of a bare space. In most cases, they work with existing furniture and help choose paint colors, art and accessories, as well as organizing spaces.

“We stage to present the home in its best light. Buyers want to see the space, the architecture, the features. We want people to see the square footage, uncluttered, with nice updated colors,” Bocko said. “If you've been in your home a long time, you tend not to see those things a buyer's eye will pick up. So we come in to help because we know what buyers want to see.”

In this age of Pinterest and HGTV, buyers are savvier than ever about how a home should look when it's for sale, she added. A well-staged house will usually sell faster, and for a higher price, than one that looks lived-in. Most buyers, particularly younger ones, are not looking for a fixer-upper.

“As a seller, you want to sell quickly. It's painful to have your house on the market and keep it looking perfect for showing. We give tips on how to make your home its most desirable,” Bocko said.

During her stage presentation, Bocko talks about current trends in the housing market. White cabinets are still prevalent, but a new look is to have different colors for the upper and lower cabinets. Walls should have neutral colors, and there should be large pieces of artwork, mixed metals and plants. Light colors are a must for bedding and bath towels, and updated hardware with a matte-style brass is hot. Granite countertops are giving way to less busy patterns in the kitchen, with subway tile very popular.

“Staging is one part of the puzzle. It also depends on the real estate market and how it's cycling, and partnering with your agent to make sure your house is priced right. You want to do everything so your house can be competitive in the market,” Bocko said.

Krista Bocko offers tips on how to stage your home when she appears on Monday, Jan. 22 and Tuesday, Jan. 23.

Meet Me at the Wine Bar

Booher Remodeling company offers four wine bar designs

After exploring the vast expanse of exhibits at the Indianapolis Home Show, come wine down at Booher Remodeling Company's wine bar — a brand-new feature at this year's show.

Founded by Rob and Kathi Booher, Booher Remodeling is an award-winning family business that has been delivering high-quality remodeling services to residents of Indianapolis and surrounding areas since 1993.

And at the Home Show this year, they are designing a space where attendees can uncork and pour!

Located in the West Pavilion, Booher Remodeling Company's wine bar features four different wine bar designs.

"The concept is to show how a wine bar can easily be incorporated into any area of your home, whether it's your kitchen, basement, den or office," said Rob Booher, president of Booher Remodeling Company.

With wood-stained cabinets, stone countertops and intricate wine racks, each bar creates an elegant, inviting atmosphere suited for wine and relaxation.

In addition to feasting upon these beautiful designs, Home Show attendees get the chance to enjoy delicious wine from PRP Wine International, which has been "delivering the taste and feel of the vineyards to clients' doorsteps since 1989."

It's the perfect way to visit the Home Show and experience a wine tasting at the same time!

So stop by the West Pavilion, have a drink and see how you can transform any part of your home into a luxurious wine bar.

Unilock Corner Beer Garden Offers Beauty and Brews

Head to the South Pavilion for beers in a stunning setting

Need a place to rest and recharge during your visit to the Home Show? Look no further than the Unilock Corner Beer Garden in the South Pavilion, which will be open for the entire 10-day run of the show.

“It’s the perfect perching place for people to comfortably enjoy a beer when the show gets hectic,” said Bill Brown, landscape coordinator for the Home Show and owner of William H. Brown Landscaping Inc. in Zionsville.

Designed and constructed by Wasson Nursery & Outdoor Living, the beer garden invites attendees to enjoy a variety of craft beers and domestics in a cozy patio-like retreat.

The family-owned and operated business is collaborating with the landscape design business Unilock, both of which have been creating beautiful outdoor spaces for the past 40 years.

The garden features two pavilions made of recycled materials. One serves as the beer garden bar while the other acts as the Wasson Nursery meet-and-greet area.
